

A Vision of a Secret Conversation 3-26-22 @ 10:43AM

Lord Jesus, I had a vision, an awake dream with my eyes fully open after praying about all these things coming upon our world. I was praying and interceding and asking You to aid our nation and world. I was asking You to keep revealing hidden things and expose them in Your holy light, and You did so. Thank you, my sweet, lovely Jesus, thank You. I see a grand office, a place where a person of great power would work. As my eyes focus on the large, impressive desk in the middle of the room, I see a man sitting there. It is Vladimir Putin. I know this is his office, but it's not his presidential office. It is a duplicate, a replica of his presidential one that he now sits in. He begins making some type of video call. I can't see all the details of the office or even the desk except for Putin and the video screen in front of him that sits upon his desktop. It looks to be, if I guessed, 10 inches wide and maybe 8 inches long, but measurements have never been a strong point for me. I know this is a private call, and the device connected to the screen guarantees it will be so somehow. I know this in my spirit as I see this vision, this daydream displaying before me. As soon as a call connects, I hear a voice on the other end ask, "What do you want, Vladimir Putin?," "Have you considered my proposal yet, Kim?" Putin asked in a self-assured silky voice. Then I realized that there must be some type of voice translator inside this secret device, because I can now see both Vladimir Putin and the person on the screen. He is Kim Jong Un, leader of North Korea. As I'm watching with my eyes open this vision, I am hearing now these words being spoken: "I have Vladimir, but what's in it for me, for North Korea?" Kim Jong Un asked in a selfish tone of voice. "If you join my coalition and aid in the destruction of America, then you will become a strong country with my help, with all of mother Russia behind you." Putin responded confidently and smoothly. "I shall give you more technology to advance your weaponry as well as your economy."

Kim Jong Un paused momentarily, then commenced speaking, "We have no love here for the United States. What do you require from me because I know you Vladimir Putin, you do nothing without it bettering your position." "Kim, you wound me with your words." Putin said slowly. "Vladimir, this is the way of a good leader. Now tell me, if I join your coalition, what will you require from me and my country? I know you well Vladimir, you do nothing without it being to your advantage somehow." Putin clears his throat slightly then smiles broadly, "I would require for you to take control of South Korea, because if not she will throw her support for the United States and aid her once we've struck." "That will not be an easy task." Kim said thoughtfully, then he speaks again, "If I agree to your coalition terms, then I would require something from you." Vladimir Putin isn't moved at all, it is almost as if he's expecting Kim Jong Un to ask for something. Then he spoke up and asked Kim quickly, "Something besides the generous offer that has been given to you already? What would this requirement be, Kim?"

Kim's face was serious as he speaks and says quickly, "I have promised the United States a Christmas gift. My gift is late. Late gifts can be sent at any time. My requirement is this: North Korea gets a turn at unleashing our nuclear weapons upon their soils during the strikes before the invasion. If this requirement is met, then I will verbally agree to your coalition. I will sign it the moment you make your first strike with your nuclear and hypersonic weapons upon the United States. These are my terms and conditions." Putin's face spreads into a pure evil grin and then he speaks, "I like your style, Kim. By all means, join in the fun. You can be given a slot on the third." Kim Jong Un's face broke into a huge grin, and then he begins laughing a horrible laugh. Putin joins in. I can see both of them laughing, and as I'm seeing this I find my body beginning to tremble, to shake. I hear Kim Jong Un then say, "Then, Vladimir Putin, we shall join your coalition. Thank you for your generous offer, and for all the prior advanced technology and weaponry that Russia has been so willing to help us with. North Korea shall rise to be a strong nation." "Then it's done?" Putin asks. "Yes, Vladimir, it's a deal. North Korea shall join you and the other nations gathered against the United States, and I shall enjoy watching her burn." Then this vision, this daydream disappears, it's gone.

"Jesus, Jesus help us." "All is set, daughter," I heard Him respond, "all is set. Prepare your heart in Me, in Me daughter of faith and grace, in Me alone."
